Don't Wait Until They Ask...

Workshops For Parents of Children Pre-K-Grade 5

Parents are the primary sexuality educators for their children. Sexplanations workshops are designed to support parents as they teach their children about sexuality by providing tips on how and when to get started and communication techniques to keep the dialogue going.

Children whose parents have open communication with them about sexuality are less likely to engage in high-risk behaviors as teens.

- National Campaign to Prevent Teen Pregnancy

From childhood through adolescence, parents need to have a continuous dialogue with their children to address age-appropriate information about sexuality.

Contact the Family Life Council today to schedule a Sexplanations workshop for your organization.

1/3 of teens gave their parents a grade of D or F on "understanding the realities of teen sex."
